

Neil Treseder Introductions

Neil Treseder must have given more to the Cornwall Garden Society than any other member within living memory. His skill in directing shows and his knowledge of the trade have been invaluable. He had a flair for creating a spectacular display and his vision in planning the layout of a large marquee (while quite alarming to the manager of the society's funds!) was courageous and splendid. The most spectacular of all the society's shows must have been the first festival at Trelassick in 1987 when he suggested a 400ft marquee—the committee was 'taken aback' and wondered if it would ever be filled but the result was tremendous and the then President of the Royal Horticultural Society, Robin Herbert, who was one of the judges, was full of praise. The Cornwall Tourist Board had asked if the society could do something to attract visitors from home and abroad and to publicise the beauty of Cornwall in the spring. So the Cornwall Gardens Festival was started and it paid off—ever since enormous numbers of people have come to enjoy our gardens and the show. It is largely due to Neil's foresight and his persistence in what he believed, that the society has such a good reputation. We shall always be grateful for his enthusiasm and inspiration.
